KeyMacro is a lightweight program. It has a clean, minimalist interface, which is best suited for people who are on the move. The screen is divided into 2 main areas: for entering text, and for inputting the macro keys. The field for entering text is resizable and vertically oriented. The input bar holds up to 4 rows of buttons, while each row can be highlighted and also edited when it is selected. All the options are conveniently visible in the Options menu. The computer doesn't need to be rebooted in order to change or assign a new macro to one of the buttons. KeyMacro isn't a program for creating macros. It is meant to be a utility to learn and apply the use of the keyboard macro keys in everyday work. The application can be launched on demand, using a shortcut, or on a schedule, as a background process. Highlight and edit fields Every field is visible at once, and it can be moved to the top or to the bottom of the screen. Moreover, it can be highlighted and edited whenever it is selected. This allows you to edit and change the content of the fields in any order. You can add new fields as well, and they are automatically inserted into the field as you add them. You can even delete them if you need to. Save and load all macros KeyMacro can save all the macros it has created, as well as all the inputs it has made. It can also load any previous saved macro. For this purpose, the Save and Load buttons are located in the Options menu. The program will also show you the output in case you have created a macro with more than one key.
